[From the Tribune.]

LAURA KERNE'S TREATRE.—The theatre of Miss Keene has been taken for a summer season by Miss M. Mitchell. It opened with a drama, in which that young lady has performed elsewhere freely, but is a novelty in New York. Its title Fanchon, and is advertised to be translated from the German. The plot is simply—an orphan girl lives with her grandmother—a woman who plays on the credulity of the peasantry of the country, and drives a brisk trade as a witch or fortune teller. Fanchon is a hoyden—a tomboy—but on coming to young womanhood displays approplate moral and feminine tradit, and from being generally shunned and ridiculed, is couried by one in particular and made happy. The play is rather didactic than dramatic, but is excellent for its moral tone. The burden of the acting fell on Miss Michell, who displayed very considerable talent. Always giving evidence of on carnest mature in the delineation of the accuse, she constantly given little this often of their maturalness—and delignia the audience therefor. The piece throughout.

EVERY NIGHT UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE.
